

NEW YORK MONEY TO PARIS

MOST LIKELY RESULT OF THE LONDON SEASON OF MOURNING.

Indecent Had Been Held Out to Get Americans and Their Pocketbooks to the British Capital for the Summer by Opening the Doors of Society Water.

There never was a time when the death of a British monarch would have a greater effect on the social plans of New Yorkers than the death of Edward VII. has caused. It is said to have been the late King's desire to make the present season in London more brilliant than any of its predecessors that led society to hold out the welcoming hand to Americans with greater warmth than ever before. Last winter an American woman of title now living in England spent several months in New York. She was said to be the ambassador of King Edward to assure Americans who came to London to spend their money that they would not lack the necessary social recognition. Maybe it was her success or it may have been the growing tendency of New Yorkers to finish the New York social season with two months in London that has led a larger number than ever to take houses there for this year. It is certain, however, that never in any previous season had so many well known New Yorkers leased houses there and supplied themselves with boxes for the Covent Garden season.

The object of this lady's visit to New York was to extend the area from which Americans were to be drawn to contribute to London gaiety this year. It is no new thing for New Yorkers to spend a season in London in a rented house or at one of the expensive hotels. Whether or not this purpose was accomplished by the lady's visit was not known, but it is settled that New Yorkers were to play a larger part than ever before in London society. American tourists are sufficiently abundant in London to contribute their share of support to the shops, hotels and theatres. But those particular purveyors of the objects that society demands have been languishing during recent seasons. It was strongly rumored that John E. Wilkie, chief of the secret service, who also belongs, was somewhere around the premises. Sure enough, he showed up in the hotel and was called on for his services. "Everybody was awed, palpitating, silent."

"Fellow Fossils," said Mr. Wilkie, looking keenly but furtively around him, "Hiss!" They cheered for seventy seconds.

ARRESTED THEM.

Two Runaway Girls Held on Way to Keep Appointment With Bad Men.

Two young girls, charged in Essex Market police court yesterday with vagrancy, told a story which makes it appear that they were lucky in being arrested. They were Laura Crane, 17 years old, the daughter of Eldon Crane, a mechanical draughtsman living in Darby, Pa., and Helen Monahan, 16 years old, the daughter of a railroad engineer living at 228 Carlisle street, Philadelphia. They confessed to being runaways from home and were placed in charge of Miss Doyle, the probation officer, until their parents can be communicated with.

Laura Crane was visiting relatives in Philadelphia when she came to New York. She and her sister, who is now in New York, were found by the police at a party in a rooming house. They were taken to the police station and held until their parents could be reached.

Whether or not they all go to London, not yet of course been decided. It was said yesterday at the offices of several steamship lines that no passages had as yet been surrendered. In any case it is probable that any chance of the famous American figure in European society will be to the advantage of Paris rather than of London. Of course the money loss to London will be great.

It is not that was in the habit of going to London for the social season," said one of those familiar with their usual movements to THE SIX reporter yesterday, "will not probably have any particular effect on the London season."

There has come to be so late that London never interfered with it. There was always time for those who wanted to get to Newport to return because by the first of August the season is over.

Now that Newport gayety reaches its height from the last week in August to the first week in September London has not interfered with its success. It is more probable that most of the Americans who are expected to spend their time in London will go to Paris instead. It is certain that few of them will remain here as their European trip, wherever most of the time may be spent, is an essential detail of the social year to those who have planned to stay in London this summer.

AIR ROUTE TO THE ISLAND.

Don't Throw Things From Bridge or You'll Be Arrested and Discharged.

To throw a match from Queensboro Bridge is not a crime so far as the provisions of the Penal Code are concerned. But to take two matches, put them in an envelope and throw them from the bridge to Blackwell's Island is to stand a good chance of being arrested.

So learned James Klein of 288 East Third street, who was arraigned in the Yorkville police court yesterday by Policeman Clarke of the bridge squad.

Klein told Magistrate Kermoehan that he was a smoker and that it was his sympathy for another smoker that led him to throw the matches. The other smoker was a penitentiary prisoner working in the quarry on Blackwell's Island.

This prisoner had a cigarette but no match, and he signalled his distress to the pedestrian on the bridge by showing the cigarette and pretending to scratch something on his trouser leg. Klein caught the signal and sent down two matches and was then arrested.

"You mustn't throw anything to the prisoners," said the Magistrate, as he discharged him.

John C. Bergen in Jail.

John C. Bergen, a descendant of the old Long Island family of that name and owner of one of the mansions on the Shore road in Brooklyn, yesterday began a thirty days term in the Raymond street jail under sentence imposed by the Court of Special Sessions for using while intoxicated one day last summer insulting language to the wife of one of his neighbors. He appeared from the decision of the Court of Special Sessions, but the sentence was confirmed by the Appellate Division on Friday. Bergen has had many arrests with the police of Coney Island and Fort Hamilton and has frequently figured in the police courts.

Chlor in His Eye Causes Death.

At Boston, May 7.—Arthur B. Smith, a former merchant, died today at his home in Chittenden. Several days ago he joined in fighting a brush fire and got a cinder in his eye. Blood poisoning developed and proved fatal. Mr. Smith was chairman of the transportation committee of the National Board of Trade. He is survived by his wife.

Dinner to His Salesmen.

The Bigelow Carpet Company tendered its semi-annual dinner to the managers and salesmen at the New York Athletic Club last evening. Speeches were made by Henry P. Bigelow and H. E. Blodgett, followed by an informal dinner of Franklin P. Shumway of Boston and "Salesmen and Advertising: How Each Helps the Other."

EX-AMATEUR JOURNALISTS.

"The Fossils." They Call Themselves, and They Dine Once a Year.

Dactyls and pterodactyls might have been found around the Republican Club last night, for were not the Fossils, as the group of old time amateur journalists are called, eating dinner on the tenth floor? You can most assuredly bet that they were. They've been eating a dinner once a year at the Republican Club since something like 1894. Some one called up Lloyd Griscom last night and asked him about it. Mr. Griscom said he did not know why the Fossils always elected the Republican club of fare unless 'twas because the Republican Club is rock ribbed and the Fossils are rock ribbed too. Which the Fossils themselves said was pretty good for a prehistoric joke.

The Fossils are those old boys who from twenty-five to forty years ago used to run little newspapers which they wrote and printed themselves. Seven years ago some of these amateur journalists got together and discovered that they had once had a bond in common. Now as Joe Miller, editor of the Single Tax Review, said it last night, the inextinguishable tendency of people having an old bond at all in common is to form a club. So the Fossils came into being.

"Once you hold a meeting," explained Joe Miller, "you all know each other and the club continues of itself. It is self-perpetuating, like the single tax. The single tax."

"Is that the tax on bachelors?" inquired some one, and the conversation drifted.

Pretty soon Charles C. Heuman, who is Tim McKeuff's partner, presented a loving cup to John Edson Briggs of Washington, D. C. Mr. Briggs, who was formerly in the State Department, has been president of the Fossils till now. Mr. Briggs published the Imp in Washington from 1875 to 1879.

Soon afterward everybody, or nearly everybody, made a speech. There was Arthur Neitz, who ran for Senator in New Jersey on behalf of the New Idea Republicans, and Frank J. Martin, who was deputy clerk for our Aldermen, and Charles Young, ex-president of the Republican Club, and Carl Figue, the musician, and Clem Chase of Omaha.

It was strongly rumored that John E. Wilkie, chief of the secret service, who also belongs, was somewhere around the premises. Sure enough, he showed up in the hotel and was called on for his services. "Everybody was awed, palpitating, silent."

"Fellow Fossils," said Mr. Wilkie, looking keenly but furtively around him, "Hiss!" They cheered for seventy seconds.

ARRESTED THEM.

Two Runaway Girls Held on Way to Keep Appointment With Bad Men.

Two young girls, charged in Essex Market police court yesterday with vagrancy, told a story which makes it appear that they were lucky in being arrested. They were Laura Crane, 17 years old, the daughter of Eldon Crane, a mechanical draughtsman living in Darby, Pa., and Helen Monahan, 16 years old, the daughter of a railroad engineer living at 228 Carlisle street, Philadelphia. They confessed to being runaways from home and were placed in charge of Miss Doyle, the probation officer, until their parents can be communicated with.

Laura Crane was visiting relatives in Philadelphia when she came to New York. She and her sister, who is now in New York, were found by the police at a party in a rooming house. They were taken to the police station and held until their parents could be reached.

Whether or not they all go to London, not yet of course been decided. It was said yesterday at the offices of several steamship lines that no passages had as yet been surrendered. In any case it is probable that any chance of the famous American figure in European society will be to the advantage of Paris rather than of London. Of course the money loss to London will be great.

It is not that was in the habit of going to London for the social season," said one of those familiar with their usual movements to THE SIX reporter yesterday, "will not probably have any particular effect on the London season."

There has come to be so late that London never interfered with it. There was always time for those who wanted to get to Newport to return because by the first of August the season is over.

Now that Newport gayety reaches its height from the last week in August to the first week in September London has not interfered with its success. It is more probable that most of the Americans who are expected to spend their time in London will go to Paris instead. It is certain that few of them will remain here as their European trip, wherever most of the time may be spent, is an essential detail of the social year to those who have planned to stay in London this summer.

AIR ROUTE TO THE ISLAND.

Don't Throw Things From Bridge or You'll Be Arrested and Discharged.

To throw a match from Queensboro Bridge is not a crime so far as the provisions of the Penal Code are concerned. But to take two matches, put them in an envelope and throw them from the bridge to Blackwell's Island is to stand a good chance of being arrested.

So learned James Klein of 288 East Third street, who was arraigned in the Yorkville police court yesterday by Policeman Clarke of the bridge squad.

Klein told Magistrate Kermoehan that he was a smoker and that it was his sympathy for another smoker that led him to throw the matches. The other smoker was a penitentiary prisoner working in the quarry on Blackwell's Island.

This prisoner had a cigarette but no match, and he signalled his distress to the pedestrian on the bridge by showing the cigarette and pretending to scratch something on his trouser leg. Klein caught the signal and sent down two matches and was then arrested.

"You mustn't throw anything to the prisoners," said the Magistrate, as he discharged him.

John C. Bergen in Jail.

John C. Bergen, a descendant of the old Long Island family of that name and owner of one of the mansions on the Shore road in Brooklyn, yesterday began a thirty days term in the Raymond street jail under sentence imposed by the Court of Special Sessions for using while intoxicated one day last summer insulting language to the wife of one of his neighbors. He appeared from the decision of the Court of Special Sessions, but the sentence was confirmed by the Appellate Division on Friday. Bergen has had many arrests with the police of Coney Island and Fort Hamilton and has frequently figured in the police courts.

Chlor in His Eye Causes Death.

At Boston, May 7.—Arthur B. Smith, a former merchant, died today at his home in Chittenden. Several days ago he joined in fighting a brush fire and got a cinder in his eye. Blood poisoning developed and proved fatal. Mr. Smith was chairman of the transportation committee of the National Board of Trade. He is survived by his wife.

Dinner to His Salesmen.

The Bigelow Carpet Company tendered its semi-annual dinner to the managers and salesmen at the New York Athletic Club last evening. Speeches were made by Henry P. Bigelow and H. E. Blodgett, followed by an informal dinner of Franklin P. Shumway of Boston and "Salesmen and Advertising: How Each Helps the Other."

Harvard Research Laboratory Assured.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 7.—The building of the Harvard research laboratory in memory of Dr. Weldon Gibbs, '88, is assured. A large part of the funds necessary is ready, most of the remainder has been promised and the small residue has been underwritten by a friend of the university.

INSPECTOR BYRNES IS DEAD

Continued from First Page

teach criminals that certain kinds of crimes must not be committed here. Highway robbery, bank burglaries or important burglaries of any kind, forgeries, counterfeiting and many other crimes were prohibited, and Byrnes's system worked so well that the number of such crimes was very materially decreased.

KNOWING CRIMINALS WAS HIS METHOD.

Byrnes's methods were not those of the story book detective, although they sometimes verged on the theatrical and he was by many supposed to be a kind of Sherlock Holmes. He was a man of force and not finesse. His business was to check the actions of criminals and to this end he made it a part of his routine to know criminals and employ stolen pigeons. In the early '80s when Theodore Roosevelt, then at the beginning of his political career, headed a legislative committee to investigate the Police Department, Byrnes as a witness surprised the committee by saying that he spent two hours in his company now," he said, looking around the chamber. "If you lost your watch you would not expect me to go to some eminent divine to get it, but to my acquaintance with the thieves."

He said that he had been picked up by a carrier and by at least one detective.

The instructions to the carriers provided that as soon as a letter was deposited in the box the carrier watching that box was to hurry to the box, open it and read the address. If the letter was not addressed to Mr. Gould he was to put a light card in it and deliver it to the carrier and the letter was to be delivered to Mr. Gould the carrier was to raise his hat as a sign to his companion detective, who meanwhile was keeping a close eye on the carrier and the letter and the person who had just deposited the letter.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon an elderly man wearing a gray mustache of military shape, fashionably dressed and carrying a light cane, walked up to the box at Seventh avenue and Thirty-fourth street and with a careless glance around dropped in a letter. He then walked leisurely down Thirty-fourth street.

Inspector Byrnes was on duty at the box before the man had much more than turned his back, and glancing at the letter raised his hat. Detective Phil Reilly was on the opposite corner. Detective Wood on duty at the box above the signal. The two detectives overhauled the elderly gentleman and took him to 300 Mulberry street, where Inspector Byrnes was waiting. The prisoner said that he was Col. J. Howard Wells of 365 Mulberry street, and that he had sent all the letters signed "Victim."

As superintendent Byrnes broke up a strong association of precinct wardmen in the last season he was well known to the masters of the precincts. It was said that they had so strong and powerful a pull that even Byrnes could not interfere with or remove them; but he did, and the wardmen went back to patrol duty. As a result of this the back of the business broken.

TOOK AWAY NIGHT STICKS.

Supt. Byrnes caused a great stir when he did what Mayor Gaynor has recently suggested doing, took away the police night sticks. It was said that he was so sure that in the twelve months following the disarming order not a single case of police brutality was reported. Other triumphs reported by the newspapers at the end of Byrnes's first year as head of the uniformed force were the closing of the poolrooms and the breaking up of the green goods business, which was flourishing when he took office. It was while he was superintendent that Byrnes got the decorations of the title of chevalier and officer of the Order of the Crown of Italy offered by the late King Humbert.

MARTHA DICKINSON LOSES.

Court Holds Her Responsible for Capt. Bianchi's Debts.

Miss Charlotte E. Terry of 11 East Forty-fourth street, who has been trying for three years to recover $7,100 from Martha Dickinson, the author, and her husband, Capt. Alexander Bianchi, for money loaned to them and who got an order of arrest from Bianchi and thereafter a mortgage from Mrs. Bianchi on property in Amherst, Mass., may be able to collect as the result of a decision by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court holding that Miss Terry came into possession of the mortgage in a proper manner. Mrs. Bianchi had sued Miss Terry and the latter's counsel, Maurice Leon, to set aside the mortgage and the court has granted her judgment.

Mrs. Bianchi's contention was that the mortgage was obtained through false representations, threats and duress following the arrest of her husband. Justice Clarke, writing the Appellate Division decision, declares that from the testimony Mrs. Bianchi had full knowledge of all the facts when she executed the mortgage and was more or less connected with the money loaned to her husband. There is no suggestion of conspiracy between Leon and the deputy who made the arrest by which it was used to effect a general settlement. The court says that Mrs. Bianchi executed the mortgage in good faith and for reasons of her own which she had incurred herself, and none of which she had participated in and none of which has been paid to this day," says the court.

JERSEY QUARTER MILLENNIAL.

Celebration of First Settlement Between the Hudson and Delaware Rivers.

Mayor H. Otto Wittman of Jersey City appointed a citizens' committee of 114 yesterday to cooperate in plans for a celebration on October 16-23 to commemorate the 250th anniversary of the founding by the Dutch settlers of old Bergen, the first permanent settlement between the Hudson and Delaware rivers, and the establishment of the earliest school and the first church (Bergen Reformed) within territory now embraced by the boundaries of Jersey City. The Mayor suggested that the interesting event be celebrated as an old home week and recommended that the Board of Finance appropriate $250 to defray the expenses.

The site chosen for the village," the Mayor said in his proclamation, "is well defined on the lines of the original survey. It covered the four blocks now lying within the corporate limits of our city surrounding the green space now known as Bergen Square and bounded by four streets which bear the names of four old families of New Jersey, namely, Newark, Van Heynen, Vroom and Troups avenues. Under the charter a municipal court was constituted and a lot was set apart for the school, which lot is still occupied by the southern portion of our own splendid No. 11 schoolhouse. One of the first municipal acts was to engage a schoolmaster who became the viceroy of the infant church."

Patrol Powder Mill Explosion.

WILKESBARRE, May 7.—Levi Davis was killed and Willard Wells and Thomas Smyth were probably fatally injured this morning by the explosion of the packing house at the Graedel plant of the Dupont Powder Company. Other sections of the plant were damaged. What caused the explosion is not known. Davis was alone in the packing house and two others were approaching the house. The shock was felt in this city. Windows were broken at Glen Summit and Fairview, several miles away.

The Wall Street "Evening Sun."

The Wall Street edition of THE EVENING SUN contains all the financial news and the stock and bond quotations to the close of the market. The closing quotations, including the "bid and asked" prices, with additional news matter, are contained also in the night edition of THE EVENING SUN.

ARREST DOCTOR FOR FORGERY

ACCUSED OF FORGING MOTHER'S NAME TO CHECKS FOR $7,697.

Dr. James T. Hardy of Larchmont, Locked Up at Police Headquarters, Says It's All a Mistake—Detective Got Him by Rose-Sister Seeks for Bail.

Dr. James T. Hardy of Beach avenue, Larchmont, was locked up at Police Headquarters last night on a charge of forging checks amounting to $7,697 with the name of his mother, Mrs. Olive T. H. Hicks, of Brooklyn. The complaint against Dr. Hardy was made by Harold Swain, general counsel for the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, at 176 Broadway. Dr. Hardy declared that his arrest was all a mistake and that he had done nothing wrong.

The physician's arrest came about through a complaint made yesterday morning to Inspector Russell of the detective bureau by Mr. Swain and an official of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company. As the result of their story Detective Miller was sent to Larchmont at once to find Dr. Hardy and bring him to Police Headquarters.

When the detective reached Dr. Hardy's residence on Beach street he was told that Dr. Hardy had gone to the post office to sign for a letter. Miller found that Dr. Hardy had been there but had gone away on a trolley car. Back at the house Miller learned that Dr. Hardy had an appointment with Dr. Beardsley at 45 Cedar street. There Miller inquired at the office of Hulbert T. E. Beardsley, a lawyer, but couldn't find out that Dr. Hardy had been there.

Miller went back to Larchmont late in the afternoon and hired a negro boy to take a letter to Dr. Hardy's house, at the same time borrowing a department store delivery wagon and acting as driver. Miller got to the house just as the boy rang the bell and when he saw a man come and get the letter he ran up with a bundle. Learning that the man was Dr. Hardy, Miller told him what he wanted.

Dr. Hardy said that he wanted to telephone and Miller permitted him to do so. Miller said that after the physician had phoned he saw the police and that the lawyer the detective was there and said his lawyer told him not to go. The detective told him he would look him up in Larchmont if he refused to go to New York, so Dr. Hardy consented to go.

Dr. Hardy got to Police Headquarters at about 10 o'clock. Beyond saying that his arrest was a mistake he would not discuss the case. Shortly after he was put in a cell a woman wearing a mourning veil, who said she was the physician's sister, called at Headquarters and inquired about the bail. The desk lieutenant told her that she must arrange for it through a Magistrate because Dr. Hardy was charged with forgery.

The desk lieutenant said that the charge of forgery against her brother was untrue and that he had done nothing wrong.

The police said that Dr. Hardy's mother is administering the estate of her husband, who died some time ago, and that the funds he drew on by check with her name are the estate funds.

The woman, accompanied by a man who said he was a lawyer, saw Magistrate Herrmann at the night court and offered security for Dr. Hardy. Magistrate Herrmann said he was too busy to examine the security and told her to apply at the Tombs court this morning. She said she could give all the cash necessary, and the lawyer said he could give half a dozen houses worth $100,000 each, but didn't have any deeds with him last night.

Last summer Dr. Hardy was sued by Frederick W. Saltzeder, a garage proprietor, to recover $500 he lost playing roulette with Dr. Hardy in a room upstairs. When Saltzeder lost he gave the physician a promissory note, and after he paid it he learned that he could get the money back by suing Dr. Hardy. The latter put in no defense and Saltzeder got a judgment by default.

Dr. Hardy had an argument with another man in the Singer Building not long ago over insurance matters and blows were exchanged. He is 38 years old and went to Larchmont about a year ago from New York. His wife bought the house they occupy several months ago.

MAY QUEENS CROWNED IN PARK.

Thousands of Happy Children Enjoy the Coronation Sports.

The first of the annual coronation of May Queens was held yesterday in Central Park, where thousands of children gathered from the east and the west sides of the park.

The bright sunshine in the early morning fulfilled the hopes of the children who lined up in happy parties in their home districts and marched to the park with bands to head the parades.

Park Commissioner Stover issued permits for the May parties to go upon the lawn in certain parts of the park. The permits were for parties numbering about 8,000 children, but more than twice that number were playing on the grass in the afternoon. The police had received instructions not to be too strict about official permits. Where the official paper said that 300 children in a party might go upon the lawn to romp and play, and it was found that there were over 600 hundred in the party, none was turned away.

The largest party took possession of the North Meadow. About 1,500 took part in the juvenile games and ball games on the lawn. There were about 1,000 on the ball ground, and other parties occupied Cedar Hill, Pasceok Lawn, Cherry Hill and the other places assigned to the children.

HELD FOR ABDUCTION.

Two Fast Riders in the Tombs on a Woman's Complaint.

The District Attorney's office hopes that in the arrest of two men locked up yesterday on the charges of abduction and assault there may be a clue to further information concerning the "white slave" traffic.

The men, who are now in the Tombs awaiting further examination to-morrow, are Hyman Gross, 21 years old, a singer, of 109 Ridge street, and Vincenzo Parrella, 25 years old, a pigeon dealer, of 215 Mott street. The girl in the case is Rose Schlanger, 17 years old, who lives at 132 Ridge street. The arrest was brought about by Miss Miner, formerly a probation officer but now the head of a home for girls.

Miss Miner learned that the girl was persuaded to leave her home on April 23 and that for a week she lived in a flat in Stuyvesant place with Gross, who then turned her over to Parrella. After a few days Parrella, it is charged, insisted that Rose Schlanger go upon the streets and give him the money that she made. The girl, seeing no other way of escape, pretended to acquiesce, and then sought employment. It was while she was looking for work that Miss Miner learned of the case.

The police say that Parrella's picture is in the rogues' gallery, but that though he has been arrested for burglary and pocket picking he has not been convicted.

Suicide Used Husband's Pistol.

Mrs. Catherine Wheeler, who has been suffering from neurasthenia since the death of her child a few months ago, shot herself with her husband's pistol in their apartment at 271 West 144th street early yesterday morning, and died several hours later in the Harlem Hospital.

Mrs. Wheeler left the bed where her husband, James, was asleep, and got his pistol from a drawer.

SIEGEL & COOPER

"SIXTH AVE. 18 AND 19 STS. J.B. GREENHUT, PRES. NEW YORK

Spring Activity

Business is at its height in every nook and corner of this wonderful store. Attractions were never greater. Mountains of the most desirable merchandise produced by the leading manufacturers of both continents are displayed at typically tempting Big Store prices. No null in this store. We don't allow it. Everything you can consistently expect to find in this, the largest and best-stocked store in America, is here. We invite price comparisons. The more you shop, the better you will like us.

Sale of Axminster Rugs

9x12 AXMINSTER RUGS—from one of the best manufacturers—beautiful silky sheen—charming color schemes—so choice that we had never before priced them at less than $32. $37.50; to-morrow $32.

AXMINSTER RUGS—size 8.3x10.6; regularly $28.75 $32; at $21.

AXMINSTER RUGS—size 6x9; regularly $24; at $21.

Still another luring line of rugs, in handsome mottled effects, with hand borders; size 9x12; value $17.50; to-morrow $14.50. (Nothing equals one of these rugs for a mission room.)

In Our Carpet Section

Two Good Specials

YARD-WIDE STAIR CARPETS—ten patterns of best quality Tapestry—very suitable for runners—regularly $1.10, $1.25 and $1.50 a yard, $1 to-morrow at 75c.

ALL-WOOLINGRAIN CARPETS—25 patterns; excellent for bedrooms and dining rooms; regularly sold at 75c a yard; to-morrow at 65c. (Siegel & Cooper Store, Fifth Floor, Front.)

Ask for "S. & H." Green Trading Stamps—We Give Them

DUCHESS AND MONEY LENDERS.

Anna Gould's Receivers Directed to Pay $14,400 Interest Yearly.

George J. Gould and Helen M. Gould, in their capacity as receivers of the estate of Anna Gould, Duchess de Talleyrand, their sister, were directed yesterday by Judge Jacobus of the United States Circuit Court to pay to Mlle. Pauline Françoise Marie Gilbert de Sartiges $14,400 yearly in four quarterly installments, beginning on August 10, 1910, as interest on a mortgage of 1,600,000 francs held by Mlle. de Sartiges. Thirty-eight thousand francs is to be paid to the Duchess for taxes and incidental expenses of the transfer of the mortgage from Louise F. E. A. Schneider, who recently held it.

Five Smallpox Cases in Boston.

Boston, May 7.—Five cases of smallpox have been discovered on London street in East Boston. The infection recently came from Cape Breton. About 100 persons in the vicinity of the house have been vaccinated and the patients have been sent to quarantine on Gallop island.

Lord & Taylor

Women's

"Onyx" Silk Stockings

A complete assortment of SilkHose in black, white and a bewildering array of colors, in plain, open-work, embroidered and lace inserts at popular prices.

Plain Black "Onyx" Silk Stockings

with or without cotton soles $1.15 per pair and upward

Plain Black and Colored "Onyx" Silk Stockings

with cotton soles and cotton top; all silk sole and double top, or cotton sole and double top $1.35 per pair and upward

"Onyx" Silk Lisle Stockings

in black, white, tan, bronze and an unlimited assortment of colors 50c. per pair and upward

Women's "Onyx" Cotton, Lisle or Mercerized Stockings

in black, white or tan 35c. per pair—3 pairs for $1.00

Infants', Misses' or Youths' Sox

Our assortment of these timely tiny stockings is most fascinating and attractive. We have them in openwork, stripes, figures, plaids, in dainty combinations to match the frocks and smart suits of the little men and women, from 25c. per pair upward

Broadway and 20th St.; 5th Ave.; 19th St.

FUR STORAGE

Dry Cold Air.

IMPROVED METHOD.

G. G. Gunther's Sons

Established 1920.

391 FIFTH AVENUE.

Eighty-nine years' experience in the care of furs.

Telephone 7260 Madison.